PREFACE.

The great and abiding interest with which the English-speaking races regard the localities in these islands that are associated with historical events, with famous men, or with their own immediate ancestry, precludes the necessity of any apology for an undertaking, the object of which is to provide, in a convenient form, a guide to the vast collection of Topographical Books relating to Great Britain and Ireland now preserved in the National Library.

The urgent need of a work of this character has long been felt not only by the frequenters of the Reading Room of the British Museum, but, judging from the numerous letters received from all parts of the country, by those who, living at a distance, wish to learn what books the Museum contains relating to the places in which they are personally interested.

Much has been done of late years towards the bibliography of certain English Counties, among the more prominent works on the subject being John Russell Smith's "Bibliotheca Cantiana," Fishwick's "Lancashire Library," Boyne's "Yorkshire Library," and Boase and Courtney's "Bibliotheca Cornubiensis." No attempt at a complete catalogue of British Topography, however, has been made since the appearance of Upcott's excellent catalogue (1818). Even this, unfortunately, deals only with England, the compiler's intention of embracing Scotland and Ireland in a future work having never been fulfilled.

A century has now elapsed since the production of Gough's "British Topography," nearly seventy years have passed from the date of publication of Sir Richard Colt Hoare's "Catalogue of books relating to the history and antiquities of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland," and down to the present time no similar work has been produced comprising the whole of the United Kingdom. During this long period an immense number of books has been written upon Topography, including many valuable county histories and minor works of great local importance, of which no collective catalogue exists. It is hoped that this desideratum may be supplied by the present work, which, although professedly only a catalogue of the books in one particular collection, nevertheless, owing to the great richness of the Museum in Topography, is virtually a general catalogue, and by far the most comprehensive hitherto published, of books relating to the history and antiquities of Great Britain and Ireland.

The numerous local directories, invaluable in many respects, have now for the first time been incorporated in a topographical catalogue. The large collection of Poll-Books in the Library has been necessarily omitted from considerations of space; and the Civil War Tracts, an inexhaustible mine for the historian, have for the same reason been only occasionally noticed.

The method of classification adopted is as follows:—The books relating to the United Kingdom in general, or to the whole of either England, Wales, Scotland, or Ireland, are arranged in corresponding sub-divisions, with various sub-headings according to the nature of their contents. Works relating to distinct counties or particular places are classified under the respective counties, those treating of the district as a whole, being placed first, and the separate places succeeding in alphabetical order. The succession of entries under each sub-division is as nearly as possible chronological. When towns or counties are treated of in the same work the entry is repeated under each; for instance, "Cobbett's Rural Rides" will be found under all the counties referred to in that book.

To facilitate the labour of referring to the Museum Catalogue, each work is entered under the precise heading under which it will be found therein, and this is indicated by conspicuous type at the commencement of every title, a saving of time and patience (more especially in the case of anonymous works) which will be best appreciated by those most frequently under the necessity of using the 2000 and odd manuscript volumes of which the Museum Catalogue at present consists. The letters P.P., followed by the name of any place, indicate that the work will be found under the head of Periodical Publications in the section of the catalogue devoted to periodical literature.

The arduous nature of the task of bringing together the titles of nearly 14,000 books on one particular subject out of the enormous mass of volumes on the shelves of the National Library is sufficiently obvious, but the difficulties attending its performance by a single individual can only be fully estimated by those practically acquainted with the magnitude of the Institution. It must be distinctly understood that the "Book of British Topography" is in no sense an official publication. Notwithstanding the time and care devoted to the undertaking, no one is more conscious than the Editor that the work cannot be free from many errors and omissions, for which he craves the indulgence of his readers. It can only be hoped that the volume may not be deemed wholly unworthy of the support already accorded to it by a numerous body of subscribers, to justify whose encouragement no exertion on the Editor's part has been wanting.

Sincere thanks are due to many kind friends, private and official, for help freely rendered, more especially during the progress of this work through the press.

STUDIES OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY IN ITALY.

By VERNON LEE.

CONTENTS:—THE ARCADIAN ACADEMY—THE MUSICAL LIFE—METASTASIO AND THE OPERA—THE COMEDY OF MASKS—GOLDONI AND THE REALISTIC COMEDY—CARLO GOZZI AND THE VENETIAN FAIRY COMEDY.

"The learning and fancy of Mr. Vernon Lee have enabled him to reconstruct the life of the Italian musical world of the last century . . Certain pages of this book quite bring us into the midst of the poets, the composers, and the singers of a hundred years ago. . . . The chapter on Metastasio ought to be translated as a whole and should be read and meditated by everyone who cares for art and for Italy. . . . The chapter on Goldoni is rich in sterling, subtle, and new observation. . . . Throughout the volume we are in the presence of a subtle and imaginative critic, of a picturesque and vigorous writer, of one who has profoundly studied a subject in which he takes passionate interest, and who has written of Italy and Italian art with a wonderful artistic intuition comparable only with that shown in some of Robert Browning's poems on Italian subjects."—Fanfulla della Domenica of Rome.

"This book shows a subtle and cultivated mind . . . . and is replete with fancy and literary talent."—Rivista Europea of Florence.

"We have before us a learned volume on the Italian stage during the 18th century by a young English writer of most lively powers, who—having drawn from valuable and often rare sources—has succeeded in setting before us a body of information which must be entirely new to the British public, and which is not familiar to our own Italian readers . . . bringing to bear upon our literature a shrewd and caustic mind and an independent spirit."—Nuova Antologia of Rome.

"Mr. Vernon Lee, if that be the author's real name, has written one of the most fascinating books that it has been our good fortune to meet with for a very long time. . . . A singularly delightful and very able volume."—Westminster Review.

"These studies show a wide range of knowledge of the subject, precise investigation, abundant power of illustration, and healthy enthusiasm. . . . The style of writing is cultivated, neatly adjusted, and markedly clever; it has a certain analogy to the styles of other æsthetic writers of the day, combining (we might say by way of indication) something of Mr. Wedmore and of Mrs. Pattison, with a spice of Mr. Pater, and another spice of Mr. Swinburne. . . On the whole, it can be cordially recommended as treating an important and little known theme with conspicuous ability."—Athenæum.

"Much detail in musical and dramatic matters may be pleasantly learned from other parts of Vernon Lee's volume."—Saturday Review.

"Mr. Lee has brought to his subject a great amount of curious and recondite learning. . . . The sketch of Metastasio's life is particularly worthy of remark. Mr. Lee throws plenty of vigour and colour into his portraiture. His style has a certain robustness; while his criticism is often just and even subtle."—Spectator.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE "FOLK-LORE SOCIETY."

Medium 8vo, Price 12s., xvii and 329 pages. (Postage 9d.)

THE

FOLK-LORE OF THE NORTHERN COUNTIES OF ENGLAND AND THE BORDERS

A New Edition, with Many Additional Notes.

BY WILLIAM HENDERSON,

AUTHOR OF "MY LIFE AS AN ANGLER."

"We congratulate the Folk-Lore Society on the new edition of this excellent book."—Athenæum.

"The new and enlarged edition of an old favourite, the work of 'a folk-lore student before folk-lore came into vogue as a pursuit,' cannot fail to be welcome to the large and increasing number of students who make this interesting subject their principal pursuit. We have here a mass of material, the accumulation of years of search and inquiry."—Notes and Queries.

"So largely increased by important and valuable additions as to be virtually a new book. . . No mere dry compilation, but a store of delightful entertainment which is well nigh inexhaustible. An index after Mr. Carlyle's own heart has been furnished, with great labour and thought, by Mr. Thomas Satchell, to whom the volume thus owes an augmentation of utility."—Daily Telegraph.

"So much enlarged and improved that it may well be treated as a new book. We have no hesitation in saying, that it is the most important contribution to the branch of knowledge which it illustrates, that has appeared for upwards of sixty years. . . . The chapters on portents, auguries, charms, and witchcraft are especially worthy of notice."—Academy.

Medium 8vo, Price 14s. (Postage 6d.)

REMAINES OF GENTILISME AND JUDAISM.

BY JOHN AUBREY, 1686-7,

EDITED AND ANNOTATED BY JAMES BRITTEN, F.L.S.

"A very curious record of bygone customs and superstitions, none of them, by the way, more remarkable than the 'Sin-eater,' a functionary who used to attend funerals, and for a shilling and a square meal,' would take upon him the sins of the deceased. . . . 'The illustrations from English sources of Roman superstitions are very curious.' 'Mr. Britten has enriched the book with notes, possessing no little value of their own.'"—Spectator.

Choice Chiswick Press Black-Letter reprint, 4to, boards, Price 21s.

THE POPISHE KINGDOME, OR, REIGN OF ANTICHRIST.

WRITTEN IN LATIN VERSE,

BY THOMAS NAOGEORGUS, AND ENGLISHED BY BARNABE GOOGE, 1570,

WITH A BRIEF MEMOIR OF HIS LIFE, BY R. C. HOPE.

"When we bear in mind the vast amount of illustration of Old English Customs and Superstitions in Barnabe Googe's translation of the 'Regnum Papisticum' of Naogeorgus, it is extraordinary that the unique copy of that highly curious volume in the University Library, Cambridge, has not been reproduced long before this."—St. James's Gazette.

MY LIFE AS AN ANGLER.

By WILLIAM HENDERSON.

"Nothing that is beautiful and of good report appears to escape the author when he wanders rod in hand, by the river's side, and it is this pleasant, natural mode of interesting his readers which will endear the book to a wide circle of readers. . . . The contents, and above all the tone of this book, by far the most important contribution of late years to angling literature, deserve much commendation . . . will be read with pleasure by all who enjoy country life, nor does it require an angler to relish the many anecdotes of northern life and natural history, which the writer intersperses among his fishing experiences."—Athenæum.

"If our readers are not fishermen they will nevertheless find ample reward in the general matter, lively and thoughtful, with which the author has diversified his story of river-side life."—Spectator.

"Mr. Henderson writes on an ever popular subject in a charming style. . . . It is, in fact, a choice book on a choice subject, choicely produced, and we congratulate both author and publishers."—Publisher's Circular.

"A lively and picturesque collection of scattered experiences."—Saturday Review.

"Gives many capital accounts of sport . . . an indispensable addition to the collector's library."—Field.

"Apart from its literary value, the volume must always take a first place among the 'choice books' of the day."—Fishing Gazette.

"Mr. Henderson has elevated the gentle craft of the angler into a fine art."—Bookseller.

"A volume in which luxurious typography and the amenities of artistic illustration are by no means unworthily expended."—Daily Telegraph.

"A work rich in humour."—Leeds Mercury.

"One of the most genial, chatty, and entertaining narratives ever penned by a Piscator."—Yorkshire Post.

"It proves that a genuine, ardent sportsman can not only be genial and gay and write a book more entertaining than a novel, but that he can also have ever present to his mind the truest and purest religious sentiments."—Durham Chronicle.

Blackwood (June 1880), Standard, Daily News, and many other papers have also given most eulogistic notices of this delightful work.

NOTICE:—A few large paper copies of the illustrated edition remain, price 3 guineas, unbound.

Fscp. 4to, Cloth, gilt. Price 6s. (Postage 6d.)

THE ANGLER'S NOTE-BOOK AND NATURALIST'S RECORD.

ON THE ART OF GARDENING:

A plea for English Gardens of the future, with practical hints for planting them.

BY MRS. J. FRANCIS FOSTER.

"In this pleasant and original little book the authoress not only enters a vigorous protest against the bedding-out system and the so-called 'natural' style of gardening, but gives very good practical advice for gardens of a different sort."—Gardener's Chronicle.

"This little book proceeds from a true lover of flowers and will be welcome to all who take an interest in their care and culture."—Civilian.

"A pleasant and unpretending little volume."—Saturday Review.
